PSYC 3233 Exam 3 Topics

Chapter 8

- How do psychologists define intelligence?
- What is the psychometric approach to measuring intelligence?
- What is the difference between fluid and crystallized intelligence? Be able to provide specific examples!
- Be familiar with some of the common tests used to measure intelligence (slides 7 and 8)
- Know the IQ cut offs for intellectual disabilities and intellectual giftedness
- What are some the potential downsides to intelligence testing that we discussed in class?
- Be familiar with Sternberg's Triarchic theory of intelligence. Be able to identify and define the three components
- What is multiple intelligence theory? Who popularized this approach?
    - What are the eight intelligences that have been identified?
- How does creativity differ from intelligence?
- How is intelligence assessed in infants?
- What relationship between childhood and adult IQ scores (i.e., are IQ scores stable across the lifespan)
- What is the Flynn Effect? (slides 26 – 27)
- What is stereotype threat? How does it relate to intelligence testing

Chapter 9

- Know the difference between phonology, morphology, syntax, semantics, and pragmatics (slides 2 and 3)
- Know the various theories for how language develops (slides 6 – 11)
- What is the critical period for language development?

- Who is Genie Wiley? What does her case potentially reveal about language acquisition and the critical period.

- Know the different steps of language development in infancy/early childhood (slides 18 – 32)

- What is telegraphic speech

    - Also be familiar with some of the common language mistakes young children make.

Chapter 10

- What is the difference between basic (primary) emotions and complex emotions? Be able to identify examples of each.

- What is temperament?

    - Be familiar with the three dimensions of temperament discussed on slide 18

    - Is temperament stable across the life-span?

- What is a psychological attachment? How do attachments form?

    - Be familiar with Bowlby's Ethological Theory of Attachment (slide 22)

- Be able to describe Mary Ainsworth's strange situation paradigm (slide 23)

- Know the difference between secure and insecure attachments

    - Be able to identify the four types of attachments discussed on slides 25 – 28

- How do infant attachments potentially impact later relationships in adulthood?

- How do parent-child attachments change throughout childhood and into adolescence?